Live more, Bank less

1. Guiding Principles

DBS recognises that the world faces considerable social and human rights challenges today. These challenges require all members of societies to collaborate in order to overcome them. With our origins as the Development Bank of Singapore, we are conscious of our ability to positively contribute to society as a bank and an employer.

We are committed to upholding the principles in the United Nations' Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. This Policy is also guided by:

- United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights
- United Nations' Guiding Principles Reporting Framework
- the Equator Principles

This Policy supplements our commitments found in our Modern Slavery Statement:

We are principally based in Asia and our approach to human rights (including impact on human rights and how such impact should be managed) will respect the different economic, legal, social, cultural, historical and religious backgrounds in Asia. Our approach to human rights will seek to balance the relationship between individual rights and the obligations of individuals toward other individuals, their community and society. We also recognise that no culture or society has a monopoly on the determination of human rights.

2. Scope and Objective

This Policy applies to all entities of the DBS Group. It provides guidance to our employees regarding their responsibilities relating to human rights.

3. Due Diligence

We assess the adverse impact on human rights that is directly caused by our operations, products or services through on-going human rights due diligence ("HRDD"). These assessments identify the actual and potential human rights impact caused by our operations, products or services. Where necessary, we shall draw on internal or external experts to assist with the HRDD.

4. Implementation and Remediation

We shall (a) take appropriate measures to address actual or potential human rights impact identified by the HRDD, and (b) track the effectiveness of measures taken to address such impact. If necessary, we shall prioritise measures that prevent and mitigate the impact that is most severe or where delayed response could make the impact irremediable. If we have caused any actual adverse impact, DBS will take appropriate remedial actions.

5. Complaint Handling Process

We have feedback/complaints handling processes in each market where we operate. In addition, we have a 'DBS Speak Up' channel for internal and external parties to file whistleblowing reports:
